Mission of the Faculty:

The Law Faculty's mission is to break new ground in Legal education through faculty-student collaboration learning beyond the classroom, and a deliberate and thoughtful balance between theory and practice.

Aims of the Faculty:

Excellent faculty members, committed students, and a supportive environment -these are what truly define the Law Faculty. The Law Faculty of Eastern University aims at all these. It aims to house a community of teachers and students dedicated to a unified purpose of teaching, exploring, and learning the law.

Curriculum Reflective of International & National Discourse:

Legal Profession is indeed one of the most challenging areas of profession where the investigative mind searches to arrive at the right conclusion with prudence and diligence. This is done by the application of well established juristic principles enumerated in Acts, Codes and researches of legal luminaries. Advanced education is a necessary tool to successfully implement the legal knowledge one has acquired in LL.B. program. LL.M. not only broadens the horizon of legal learning but also enables one to become a successful legal practitioner. This is offered in a one year LL.M. program at Eastern University. Actuated by a noble mission to equip LL.B. graduates with further legal knowledge and training, Eastern University has carefully devised the LL.M. Program. Utmost importance has been attached to the most contemporary and contextual topics to be included in the LL.M. courses. This Program intends to raise the inquisitive minds of students so that they appreciate the importance of professionalism, ethics and civility and to ingrain in themselves these very qualities which are instrumental in the development of legal skills eventually leading to the desired goal of becoming a successful lawyer. Success of lawyers will be measured not only by the degrees they have obtained but by the successful application of these qualities coupled with the knowledge and training that they receive which will help establish themselves on a firm footing in the legal world.

Objective of the LL.M. programs:

The main objective of the LL.M. programs is to provide advanced education and training in legal disciplines. It aims to develop highly skilled academics and professionals in important areas of national and international laws. After obtaining LL.B. degree in law, LL.M. program will provide students an opportunity to explore legal issues of national and international concern at an advanced level. This program is designed to enable a student to face the legal challenges of the twenty first century. Law students are expected to work and provide leadership in different legal environments, such as private practice, teaching, consultancy, Judiciary, etc. A further study of law at Eastern University could help strengthen student's professional career. The program is theory-based and the degree offered is purely academic. Therefore, the LL.M. is that gloss in one's academic qualification without which the study of law, perhaps remains incomplete. Thus today, most students having obtained the LL.B. aspire to complete LL.M. as well. At Eastern the LL.M. program is comprehensive and indeed multifaceted.

Outstanding Faculty Members:

The particular strength of Eastern University's Law Faculty is its teaching staff, most of whom have been educated at reputed Universities of the UK and the USA. The teachers are socially involved, professionally active, competent, and caring mentors. Together, they vow to develop the students with a keen appreciation of the importance of professionalism, civility, and ethics, with the skills to be successful lawyers, and with a commitment to the idea of law as public service.

A Market Place of Ideas:

The Faculty of Law fosters an atmosphere in which students and faculty members can discuss and debate issues of national and international relevance. It is a place where students share ideas and challenge opinion. The Faculty offers a place to disagree, to see that there's another side of every issue, and to learn to respect difference. Multiplicity of ideas and diversity of viewpoints are critical to Law Faculty's educational mission.

Workshops and Seminars:

The Faculty of Law organizes workshops and holds seminars at regular intervals. The seminars and workshops focus on contemporary and significant legal issues. Prominent personalities and legal luminaries are invited in these workshops and seminars.
